

I HAD WRINKLE-FREE WEDDING PHOTOS*

Deborah Chinn, 47, from London, is an event organiser

“ I've always looked after my skin, splashing out on expensive creams and regular facials. But after I turned 40, I needed something more drastic to keep old age at bay.

I'd read a lot about Botox. Many of my friends had tried it and loved it. And as it takes 40 to 50 minutes, I could fit it into my lunch break.

After my 44th birthday, I had a good reason to start Botox - my wedding. My boyfriend, Miles Chinn, and I were getting married after six months together. He's 13 years younger than me and I didn't want to look haggard.

Going under the needle was a little nerve-racking, but I'd picked my practitioner at Botonics, a clinic in London, as he was very experienced.

I booked in for the £300 treatment and he injected my forehead a number of times, then around my eyes. It didn't hurt, and afterwards, I couldn't make out where the needle had been.

I felt years younger on my wedding day and confidence oozed out of me.

I had a manicure, make-up and a posh hairdo, but the Botox injections were the best pre-wedding beauty treatment.

” The treatment for two areas is £300. For more information, call 0845 680 1964, or visit www.botonics.co.uk.
